To the Livingston College Class of 1986:

It is this time of year when I bid farewell to the University's graduating seniors that is a bittersweet one for me as I'm sure it is for you. I am saddened by your departure because you have, by your presence here, contributed so very much to the University Community, and indeed as alumni will always remain a part of our extended University family. However, I rejoice with you at your successful completion of a rigorous program of study and at the myriad opportunities that now await you.

I am gratified that the Livingston College Class of 1986, which showed such promise as undergraduates, moves now beyond the classroom and laboratory to fulfill that promise, strengthened by the experiences of the past four years and sustained by the knowledge that the education for which you worked so long and hard will hold you in good stead in the years to come.

I know I speak for the entire Rutgers University Community when I wish you success in your next endeavors. We are proud to have known you as students here; we are prouder now to call you alumni.

Sincerely,

Edward J. Bloustein

Dear Student:

Leaving college is a time of mixed emotions. You have a well-deserved sense of pride and satisfaction in achieving your goal of earning a baccalaureate degree. We of the faculty and administration share your pleasure, knowing that the education you have received at Livingston College assures you of a proper preparation for the next stage of your life whether a job or further study.

At the same time, you probably have a sense of loss, or sadness. You are leaving friends, associates, familiar faces and surroundings. You may even experience some trepidation at what you face in your next step. Do you remember leaving high school and beginning college when you weren't sure that you were ready for such a change? Things worked out for you at Livingston College; you learned what was expected of you and how to meet those expectations. You'll do well in your next endeavors too.

In leaving, however, you take with you memories which will never be lost. Memories of each other, of your classes and professors, of campus controversies, and of a sense of being a part of something big. The Class of 1986 will especially remember the closing of the Kilmer Library for asbestos removal and the difficulties which that closing caused; of the new Livingston College Student Center, its delayed opening, and the lack of completion of it many months after its promised delivery; of the moving of the School of Business to become our neighbors on Kilmer; and of the biggest Spring Weekend ever. These and other memories are special and should be kept alive. They represent your years at Rutgers University.

As an individual, you mean a great deal to both the College and the University. We want you to remain associated with your College by becoming a member of your alumni organization. Through them, you can get together with old friends and relive your experiences and keep the memory of the Livingston College experience forever a vital part of your life.

I wish you well in your future and most sincerely hope that you will return to see us on occasion. Whatever else, we are now a part of one another. That sharing has been a pleasure for me; I hope it has been for you as well.

Sincerely yours,

W. Robert Jenkins
Dean
